Councilwoman Bryan testifies on the importance of honoring the treaties

Councilwoman Annette Bryan testified to the House Interior Appropriations Committee on March 9, American Indian and Alaska Native Public Witness Day, reminding members of the importance of honoring our treaties. She discussed issues impacting our Tribal community: healthcare, public safety, natural resources, and education.

Bryan emphasized the importance of continuing to receive federal funding to support crucial programs. "It is critical that members of Congress, on both sides of the aisle, hear directly from Tribal leaders on the issues that their communities are facing," she said. "It is a great honor to represent the Puyallup Tribe of Indians in the nation's capital, making sure that our needs are heard when Congress is making the budget."

EQC Riverboat has a new home

By Puyallup Tribal News staff

The Puyallup Tribe's Emerald Queen Riverboat has a new owner and new home. Spectral Crane and Marine has taken over ownership, and the vessel departed Blair Waterway for Seattle on Feb. 23. Moving the vessel opened up more of the Tribe's port property for economic development.

"The riverboat served our Tribe well and laid the foundation for us to open and operate the two premier casinos in the Northwest," the Puyallup Tribal Council said in a statement released after the riverboat's sale.

The original Emerald Queen Casino opened on the riverboat in December 1996 before expanding into the building that once housed the Tribe's bingo hall in 2002. The Tribe currently operates the Emerald Queen Casino at Fife and the newest incarnation of the Emerald Queen Casino Tacoma, which opened at 2920 East R Street in 2020.

After the riverboat's departure, Councilmembers reflected on what it meant to the Tribe and on the need to use the site for future economic growth:

"So, so many good memories that it's hard to let go no matter what. That boat provided income for each and every Tribal member no matter where they lived. That boat provided jobs for Tribal members and the community. It held many wonderful gatherings from Membership meetings to Christmas parties, and awesome entertainment.

"That boat made it possible for the Puyallup Tribe to donate many dollars to community organizations, provide education and training assistance and help many Members and their families with funeral assistance. It helped in purchasing our lands that were stolen from us long ago."

"The riverboat helped the Puyallup people get where we are today."

"And now it is time to let it go — for we have somewhere we need to be for TOMORROW."

Chief Leschi auditorium opening

By Mikayla Flores, Communications Coordinator

After 25 years, Chief Leschi Schools celebrated the long-awaited completion of the school's auditorium with a grand opening event for the community.

Chief Leschi was founded in 1976 and housed in multiple locations around the Puyallup Reservation before moving to its current location in the Puyallup Valley. The auditorium at its current campus remained incomplete for 25 years, and the space was essentially used for storage. Many students who have attended Chief Leschi over the years may not have known the space even existed in the school's Four Seasons building. Now that the auditorium is complete, the school has big plans to utilize it.

Puyallup Tribal Council attended the event to recognize all of the hard work that went into completing this $4 million project. "The Puyallup Tribe has never gotten anything without a fight," Vice Chairwomen Sylvia Miller explained as she thanked the lobbyists and leaders for the effort they put into creating and improving Chief Leschi Schools. Ehren Flygare, who works at the Puyallup Tribe of Indians in Government Relations, was also recognized for tirelessly lobbying for the Tribe and securing funding for the auditorium project.

The evening was packed with musical performances from the school's drum and dance group, the school's newly established Rez Kid Drummers, Ojibwe musician Keith Secola, the Bad Dog Band, Quiltman, and Casper Lomayesva & the Mighty 602 Band. Also performing, were two indigenous actors and musicians, Sten Joddi "Reservation Dogs" and Gary Farmer "Powwow Highway, Smoke Signals".

A group of high school students from Chief Leschi collaborated with University of Washington graduate students on a video project, titled "In the Eyes of our Children." Throughout the evening, each video was presented to the audience telling the stories of our traditions and teachings, as well as the importance of protecting our youth and future generations.

Healthy vs. Unhealthy relationships

By: NCMEC + A21

Knowing the differences between healthy relationships and unhealthy relationships is a key aspect to preventing trafficking situations. It's so important to talk often to young people about how to tell the difference so they can build healthy relationships and stay safer.

Let's start with an example:

Healthy relationship: Based on respect, honesty, trust, communication, compromise, commitment, healthy boundaries and a mutual building of each other's self-confidence.

Unhealthy relationship: One partner forces the other partner to sacrifice friendships, family, school, personal goals or even their emotional well-being while in the relationship. These relationships can be physically, emotionally and mentally abusive.

A21 describes the "loverboy method of trafficking," also known as the "Romeo method of recruitment," as what appears at first to be a healthy relationship. Often (but not always) it involves an older man pretending to be a loving boyfriend. However, over time, it turns into an unhealthy relationship that leads to sex trafficking. Traffickers gain trust and then exploit the victim by luring them into trafficking under the pretenses of a romantic relationship through grooming and abuse. The process of recruitment can happen quickly or take place over an extended period of time. It is important to note that even though the term "loverboy" is used, traffickers are not only males just as victims are not only females.

Knowing a few relationship safeguards can help prevent a potential trafficking situation.

1. It's important to create a safety network with the people in your life outside of your relationship. Maintain this safety network by sharing about your relationship. This is your "circle of trust."
2. Always keep important phone numbers with you, especially for people you'd want to contact if you were in trouble.
3. Establish consent boundaries in your relationship, allowing you to use assertive communication to make personal decisions.

Online Relationships

While it's tempting to just tell kids not to talk to strangers online, unfortunately, it's not that simple. It's not uncommon for an abuser to be a trusted adult in the child's life with whom they have an online relationship. Even when an abuser is a stranger, children may not see them that way. Online safety is vital to protecting children from those who seek to exploit them online.

It's important to speak to children and teens about online safety early and often. It's never too early to start having these conversations. Children are becoming tech-savvy at an increasingly earlier age with even young children using internet-enabled devices for schoolwork, entertainment and staying connected to friends and family.

A lot of the same things that keep children safe offline will protect them while they're online. The most important factor in prevention is making sure your children are connected to caring adults who can have open conversations with them about things like good boundaries, consent and self-esteem.

If you suspect the online sexual exploitation of a child or child sex trafficking, even if you're not sure, report it to the CyberTipline. NCMEC's CyberTipline is a centralized reporting system for online exploitation of children. These reports provide NCMEC with an opportunity to support law enforcement in building child sex trafficking investigations, intervene in exploitation and help connect survivors to services.

To make a CyberTipline Report, visit CyberTipline.org or call NCMEC's 24/7 toll-free hotline, 1-800-THE-LOST. If someone is in immediate danger, call 911.

A21 is one of the largest organizations in the world that is dedicated to solely fighting human trafficking. A21 operates at a local, domestic and international level to respond to trafficking that is already taking place and actively works on the frontlines of prevention.

The National Center for Missing & Exploited Children serves as a national clearinghouse for reports relating to child sex trafficking and assists law enforcement, first responders, and victim specialists relating to the identification, location, and recovery of child sex trafficking victims.

Learn about how trafficking happens, what it looks like, and share your knowledge with friends, coworkers and family. Contact the Puyallup Tribe Community Domestic Violence Advocacy Program for more information, services or to schedule a training. Report human trafficking – See something say something – if you believe someone is a victim of human trafficking report suspicious activity to The National Human Trafficking Hotline at 1-888-373-7888

MORE INFO COMING
menomineevets@gmail.com FB: Veterans of Menominee Nation

The Puyallup Tribe has a strong connection to our Tribal Veteran brothers of the People of the "Wild Rice," the Menominee Nation from December 2011 when the J.M. Martinac Shipbuilding Company of Tacoma launched a Navy Tug, the YT-807 "Menominee". Menominee Nation veterans came to Tacoma for the launch. The "Menominee" was deployed to Japan to work with her sister tug, the YT-806 "Puyallup", which was launched and deployed to Japan earlier in 2011. The Menominee Tribal Veterans returned to visit and present their Eagle Staff and Colors for our annual Labor Day Pow-Wow in September 2012 and in 2016.

Should you be interested in assisting with the "Raising of the Family Flags," the "Veteran's Snake Dance," and in carrying the colors for Grand Entry as well as participating in the other Pow Wow festivities, please submit your request in writing no later than April 10, 2023 to Puyallup Tribe of Indians; ATTN: Tribal Veterans Representative; 3009 East Portland Avenue; Tacoma, WA 98404-4926.

This three-day event honors veterans and military personnel of all cultures, eras, and branches in a Native way. Watch entertaining performances from cultural groups and participate in powwow-style dancing with other veterans. April is Child Abuse
Prevention Month

The Children of the River Child Advocacy Center has partnered with multiple other programs, including the Puyallup Tribe's Children's Services and Little Wild Wolves Youth Center, to provide trainings and events for staff and the community.

Child abuse is a community problem. A substantial body of research indicates that violence against women and children can have long-lasting, intergenerational consequences. For example, harsh physical punishment of children is more common in households where women experience violence by intimate partners. Also, exposure to violence in childhood—either as a victim or witness of physical or sexual abuse—may increase the risk of experiencing or perpetrating violence later in life. The implications of this evidence point to the importance of developing a coordinated response to violence against women and children.

During the month of April, save the date for the following trainings:

April 7 2pm-4pm Darkness to Light, Stewards of Children (Recognizing Child Sexual Abuse Education)

April 7 Community Dinner at LWW Youth Center, featuring presentation and outreach tables

April 12 Mandated Reporter Training during PTCS Foster Parent night

April 18 Mandated Reporter Training, open to all staff and community members

April 26 DEC Alliance training in the new EQC, two sessions, morning with breakfast and afternoon with lunch. DEC training looks at the risks and long-term impact of drug-endangered children, overcoming the challenges of aligning the agencies and systems responsible for preventing, intervening, and treating these issues to change the trajectories of the lives of drug-endangered children and break the multigenerational cycles of abuse and neglect.

Blue Fridays - Every Friday we will be accepting pictures of you in the 2023 blue t-shirt and/or with your No Hit Zone sign for an outreach incentive contest.

We will be decorating Tribal offices with the Child Abuse Awareness Blue pinwheels and continuing to distribute No Hit Zone signs.

This year's Child Abuse Awareness t-shirt pictures Grandmother Moon who is always watching, as the Elders are always watching, and our Ancestors are always watching. The Earth is our Mother, the Sun is our Father, the Clouds are our Aunties, the Mountains are our Uncles, the Moon is our Grandmother, and all of the Universe is our Grandfather. Children are Sacred. Violence is not Traditional.

Look for Tribal Announcements or contact Carmelita.smith@puyalluptribe-nsn.gov for more information on registering for events.

Awareness Month

PUYALLUP TRIBE OF INDIANS

The Tribe commemorates a pivotal moment in history

By Ernest A. Jasmin, Puyallup Tribal News Editor

The Puyallup Tribe commemorated a pivotal moment in Tribal history with a ceremonial tree planting on March 11 at Chief Leschi Schools.

A few dozen attendees turned out on a chilly afternoon to witness the placement of a special sapling. It was grown from a seed from the Treaty Tree, a famous Douglas fir that once stood in Thurston County at the site of the Medicine Creek Treaty signing of 1854.

Puyallup Tribal Council members Fred Dillon and James Rideout were among 10 Tribal members that carried the sapling to its new home as Clinton McCloud, Mike Hall, Yelki Bill and other musicians performed an honor song. The tree bearers and four witnesses – two elders and two youth – wore blankets draped over their shoulders, signifying their roles on this special occasion.

“Today, we remember all of those that gathered in the Nisqually Valley on Medicine Creek,” Puyallup Tribe Culture Director Connie McCloud said, delivering opening remarks.

The Treaty Tree succumbed to disease in 1979, and the remaining stump fell during a winter storm years later, in 2007. “Somebody in their wisdom, when the tree finally fell, gathered the seeds,” McCloud explained.

Chairman Bill Sterud, Vice Chairwoman Sylvia Miller, Monica Miller, and Annette Bryan also represented Tribal Council at the event. Councilwoman Anna Bean was absent due to illness.

“Today is a day of celebration,” Sterud declared. “This is big, really big, in our Tribe’s life.”

The Chairman alluded to the Medicine Creek Treaty’s controversial history. The document was signed in the shadow of the Treaty Tree on Dec. 26, 1854, the first in a series of treaties that Gov. Isaac Stevens made with Tribes across Washington Territory.

The treaty decreed that members of the Puyallup, Nisqually, Steilacoom, Squaxin Island and other tribes cede 2.5 million acres of land in exchange for three small reservations, $32,500, and access to traditional hunting and fishing grounds.

The tribes were coerced into signing, and there is reason to believe that some of the x’s that were presumably the signatures of Tribal leaders were forged.

“When I saw the treaty in person, the actual treaty, I cried,” Bryan recalled. “I know that those little x’s were misunderstood. I know that our ancestors wouldn’t have wanted us to go through what we had to go through; and I know they didn’t have a choice but to sign that X on that paper.”

Tensions escalated into armed conflict between Tribes and militiamen, culminating in the capture of the Nisqually leader, Chief Leschi, who was executed in 1858.

Though U.S. forces were victorious, Stevens met with Puyallup and Nisqually leaders and agreed to larger reservations for both Tribes. More than a century later, the Medicine Creek Treaty became a basis for enforcing Tribal fishing rights, inspiring the Fish Wars, the great fish-in protests of the 1960s and ‘70s.

“So, how is the treaty beneficial?” Sterud asked Saturday. “It secured certain rights forever. Every so often, they try to take some away, and we have to go fight to get it back – which we do.”

“Lots of things were taken from us, not just our land,” Sylvia Miller said. “So, it’s a big honor for each and every one of us to be a part of this today, to witness it – all of us. It’s something we’ll all remember and hopefully pass it down to our children.”

“This is history that needs to be written down,” Monica Miller said. “Our history needs to carry on.”

Rideout called the tree a reminder of the need for Tribes to work together. “They tried to divide us so they can conquer us,” he said. “But here we stand today, together. Each and every one of us, we’re always going to be stronger together. And hopefully, our kids will learn from this day and take it into the future.”

The sapling was a gift from the Nisqually Tribe, which had its own planting ceremony in January, attended by Dillon. He added a bit of levity to Saturday’s event, admitting to how nervous he felt for being chosen for such an important mission.

“I don’t know how to keep things alive like this. So, why are you doing this to me?” he joked. “I come from fisheries. ... They can keep a tree alive, right? So, I brought it to fisheries, and they had it for a little while.”

The crowd had grown to about 200 by the time the event moved inside to the Chief Leschi gymnasium. Chairman Sterud and witnesses spoke there, and former Tribal Councilwoman Ramona Bennett was given an eagle feather in recognition for all her years of activism and leadership.

Electron Hydro and executive cop to charge related to illegally dumping turf in Puyallup River

By Ernest A. Jasmin, Puyallup Tribal News Editor

In February, Electron Hydro LLC and Chief Operating Officer Thom Fischer pleaded guilty to a single criminal count in connection with polluting the Puyallup River in 2020.

The plea concluded a case brought by Washington Attorney General Bob Ferguson that relied on evidence gathered by the Puyallup Tribe in its efforts to document the impact of illegally dumped artificial turf at the site of Electron Hydro's 120-year-old dam near Mount Rainier National Park.

The company placed old turf into a temporary flow bypass channel during the summer of 2020, topping it with a plastic liner for a construction project; but the liner was torn, releasing large amounts of polyethylene and rubber debris into the current.

The court filing noted that University of Washington Tacoma Center for Urban Waters researchers tested samples of recovered turf and crumb rubber and discovered that it contained chemicals found in tires, including one that is "extremely toxic" to Coho salmon.

Tribal Fisheries staff members have documented this pollution with more than 2,200 images and videos. They say they have recovered plastic turf, sheeting, geotechnical fabric, and crumb rubber from as far as 41 miles downstream from the dam, and these harmful materials still remain in the Puyallup River.

The Attorney General recommended fines totaling $1 million, including $745,000 to be used for projects that protect the health of the Puyallup River and a $255,000 fine that would be paid to Pierce County. Ferguson's office pledged to work with the Puyallup Tribe to identify worthy projects that will benefit from these funds.

However, the resulting count is just one of dozens of misdemeanor charges that the AG initially filed against Electron Hydro in Pierce County Superior Court, and the Tribe criticized potential punishments the company faces as insufficient.

Puyallup Tribe biologist Julian Close demonstrates the size of a piece of turf found in the Puyallup River on March 9, 2021.

"The guilty plea to just one of 36 counts in this case does not bring justice compared to the harm caused and the damage to the Tribe's natural resources," Tribal Council said in a statement responding to the plea.

"The company has not cleaned up its mess, and now its Canadian owner will simply write a check to go back to business as normal—a check that amounts to approximately one month's revenue for the facility when it was operating."

The charge that Fischer pleaded guilty to can also carry up to a year in jail, but the state agreed not to recommend jail time, according to the Associated Press. Instead, the Attorney General recommended that Fischer complete two years of probation for a suspended 364-day sentence.

Pierce County Superior Court Judge Philip Sorensen has set a hearing for May 5 to determine sentencing.

The Tribe is also co-party with the Environmental Protection Agency in ongoing litigation for violations of the Clean Water Act and has ongoing federal civil litigation case against the dam for violating the Endangered Species Act. Those cases are expected to go to trial in the fall and in spring 2024, respectively.

Attention Tribal Members:

DO YOU HAVE A WILL IN PLACE?

A will can ensure both your family and assets are taken care of and protected how you see fit.

Most importantly a will assists with:

- Obtaining peace of mind
- Preventing disputes over your assets
- Determining who inherits your property
- Directing your burial

Make an appointment with our will specialist today!

Appointment only Monday through Friday virtual or in-person at the main Admin building.
Contact 253-382-6810; LegalAid@puyalluptribe-nsn.gov for questions and appointments.
